The poet, like the organist, begins doubtfully and far away, and builds a bridge from Dreamland for his lay. The organist presented in the introductory stanza represents the poets method of beginning far away and reaching his theme by gradual approaches. In fact this stanza images a universal method of thought Always there is an approach to the definite through the vague and indefinite. This stanza seems to stand apart and to have no connection with the theme. And it has no such connection except as a hint and preparatory mood by which the reader may the more readily approach the theme. The theme in the second stanza of the poem is the unconscious rising to higher life...
