Excerpt: .which are raised in the greenhouses in this vicinity. Gicat quantities of the Bermuda lilies are shipped in here for the trade at this time. They are grown out of doors and are cut and packed for shipment while they are still in the bud. When they arrive in New York, in quantities of hundreds of thousands, they are shipped out to Western and Southern cities. They find little market here, for the color of the flower is rather yellow, while those which are cultivated undcr glass in this vicinity are pure white and very fragrant. All other flowers for the Easter time are forced under glass and are made accustomed to the cold air gradually by ventilation. Most of the product sold in New York City is grown within a radius of fifty miles. A remarkable thing is the increase in the trafic in flowers in New York City. Ten years ago there were about a dozen florists here, and their total sales did not amount to more than one million dollars a year. T he business of raising and selling flowers has grown with the growth of the city. It is an indication of the wealth and prosperity of the people; it shows that, having money, they arc willing to spend it; and it points to an innate love of the beautiful and natural. People will not buy flowers unless they have more inoncy than they need for the actual necessities of...
