Excerpt: . SYSTEM OF EDUCATION ADVOCATED BY FRANKLIN
The sources in which are found in the most finished form Franklin s recommendations for the organization of education are: The Rules His Writings governing the Junto; Proposals relating to the Education of Youth in Education. Pennsylvania; Sketch of an English School; Observations concerning the Intentions of the Original Founders of the Philadelphia Academy. Other valuable ideas and explanations are found in minor treatises and in letters to friends. Franklin, being himself self-educated, advocated a system whereby each individual could so utilize the sources and forces about him that in so doing he would become learned System f of Education and useful. It was just the system advocated Dy which he had educated himself, by him. He believed that a man by his own efforts could reach perfection in almost any art. This we have set...
